¶ A Concordance of yeares from the beginning of the reigne
of K. HENRY the 7.

Together with some brief notes and memorable
accidents, collected out of the best Chronicles,
being both delightfull and profitable.

After conquest	Kings reigne.	Time expired.	Easter day.
Henry 7	began to reigne	August 22.		After those many and great interruptions of State, which happened in that cruell contention between the two royall houses of Yerk and Lancaſter; It pleased God to ſettle the quietneſſe of this Kingdome in the hands of this noble and wiſe Prince Henry 7 who by his great wiſdome and policie (although in a dangerous time) governed peaceably, to his great honour.

¶ The use of this table of Concordance.

This Table of Concordance may be of great use to diverse men, especially to those who have ancient Deales, whereby they may know from the yeare of our Lord wherein they were first dated, how long after the Conquest it was, and in what Kings reigne, and how many yeares since expired to this present yeare, 1637. Also the dayes of the moneth for the falling of Easter, from the yeare 1485, which was the first yeare of Henry the seventh, where this Concordance beginneth.

As for example.

I have a lease for an hundred yeares, bearing date the 20 of May 1550, I would know how much thereof is expired this yeare 1637, and how much to come. Looking therefore for the yeare 1550, I finde it to be in the 484 yeare after the Conquest, being the fourth yeare of Edward the 6, and 87 yeares since this present 20 of May.

Now to know how many yeares are yet to come, take 87 out of 100, & the remainder is 13, which is the just number of yeares to come this yeare 1637. Also for the falling of Easter that yeare it was the first of April, and the Dominicall letter was C.

This may be done in this manner for any yeare since the beginning of the reigne of Henry the seventh, where this Concordance beginneth.

If any man be desirous to know the Dominical letter for any yeare past let him look in the Almanack, and that letter which answers to that day of the moneth upon which Easter day fell that yeare, was the Dominicall letter.

Winter 1637.

Directions for Husbandrie

In January cut down timber, and it shall not chink
In or reise; dung land, cut away superfluous branches
from fruit-bearing trees, and make bare their roots;
fallow land for wheat and rye, drench beasts that be weak or sick, as kye with versuyce, horses with swa-
ter and ground malt, and a little bran sodden together,
or some other drench according to the disease; digge gardens, and remove trees, geld and wein such calves and pigs as you purpose to keep.

In February lay and cut quick-sets, plant roses, sow beans, pease, and oats in cold clay-land. Mow every good housewife bestoweth her pains in setting and sowing all kindes of sallads.

In March in the new Moon, the winde and weather regarded, graft all kinds of good fruits, cover the roots
of your trees you uncovered in January, with fat earth;
set or sow beans, pease, oats, onions, and all kindes of roots: towards the end of this moneth sow barley.

In April sow barley, hemp, and flax, and garden-seeds, as citrons, cucumbers, mellons, artichokes, and set garden-herbs about the end of this moneth. Mow mangers pill barks, & good housewives are busie in their barries.

In May sow barley in the beginning, else look for a late harvest, and little profit: set and sow tender herbs
and seeds, as basil, sweet marjoram, summer savoury, and such like. Weed gardens, set silks to work, gather
May dew, and stirre land for wheat and rye.

In June shear sheep, bring home fessell, set gilliflowers and rosemarie; sow lettice three or foure dayes after the full moon; from February to September set salmon, mow down your meadows, but not before the longest day be past.

In

In July he is a bad husband that is not sweating amongst his hay-cocks. It is now good to gather flowers and seeds (at the full of the moon) such as you will keep dry all the yeare, drie your flowers in the shade till they be almost drie, and then sunne them a little for fear of corrupting; use a moderate diet, and beware of great thirst, for nothing bringeth the pestilence or pestilent diseases sooner then extreame thirst, and feverish heats and cold taken suddenly upon them.

In August reap down your rie and wheat, and get into the barns, stirre your land for wheat and rie: and in the end of this moneth down with your oats, refrain from sleeping after meat, and beware of sicknesse. Such as desire to have lettice or other herbes for winter, may now sow their seed in the new moon.

In September get down barley, pease, and beans, and about the midst of this moneth sow wheat and rie in strong and cold land; make verjuice, gather fruits, akorns, and other masse, put ewes to ram, gather hives that will yeeld honey, and sow parsneps and carrots for winter.

In October sow wheat and rie, but chiefly in the beginning, for fear of rain at the end; in the new moon sow and remove young trees, as plums, pears, swardens apples, and bay-trees, set akorns, nuts, filberds, and walnuts. And after the full gather your winter fruit.

In November, in the beginning, sow wheat and rye in hot ground: cut down your ashes for plow timber: malt makers are now not idle, and killing of swine for bacon is now in best season.

In December, cut down timber to build with, burn hedges. Take birds and fowl with nets and lime twigs, fallow your land for barley, set beans and hals pease, look to your cattell, cover herbes with straws from frost and snow.
